

S. Korea eases ban on foreign doctors

By Joanne Aring

SEOUL, S. Korea — In planning to allow foreign doctors with medical licenses to join the hospital and medical sectors, South Korea, the Philippines Overseas Employment Administration (POEA) said that the Ministry of Health and Welfare of South Korea recently announced its plan to relax the endorsement requirement in the country's medical law which is expected to be finalized in September.

POEA spokeswoman said that the Philippines Embassy in Seoul would also be in the center of the proposed regulation, foreign doctors with medical licenses may be allowed to work in South Korea by March next year.

However, the regulation, if approved, would only allow a foreign doctor to treat patients who have the same or similar condition to the one in which he or she is a specialist, or if they both speak the same language, but would not be allowed to treat foreign patients.

Revised The revision would give the way for the entry of Filipino doctors in South Korea to take care of the health needs of about 45,000 Filipinos and about 400,000 South Korean speaking the Filipino, then, according to POEA.

The agency said that it talks about the qualifications and process of practicing foreign doctors are expected to come before the end of the year.

Meanwhile, the POEA said that the United States' State Office has announced the removal of general visas from the shortage occupations list, and increasing only those with specific fields of specialization.

The new policy, according to the POEA, is effective Aug. 15.

The move is quite ironic, considering the Philippines is usually the source of labor for the United States but before they can remove the occupations list.

Pinay missing in Greece

A PHILIPPINE WOMAN has been missing for more than two weeks after the sailboat that she and her brother had been sailing collided with a large cargo ship off the coast of Greece in June.

In a statement, the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) identified the Filipino as Christiana (Christina) Salas, a resident of Cebu.

Salas and her husband were on their sailboat "Sea Star" when it collided with the English-flagged high-speed yacht "Lion" last June 14.

The sailboat had damaged and capsize immediately, according to initial report after the first discovery of Salas in the sea. Alfonso Salas

DFA honors Fil-Am soldier slain in Iraq

MANILA (SECURITY ALBANY) — Salas and his wife, Jennifer, are the family of a Filipino-American soldier who was killed in Iraq, recently passing law for helping defeat democracy, a government statement said yesterday.

Salas has received a Philippine consular award in the US to honor his service to the family of Army Sgt. Christopher Salas in San Francisco, a Department of Foreign Affairs statement said.

In his letter, Salas said the Philippine honors honor "bravery and commitment in helping secure a free, stable and democratic Iraq."

"Christopher represented the best of the Filipino-American freedom-loving independence and good-will," Salas said.

President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo is among US President George W. Bush's closest allies in the United States and has strongly supported joint Philippine-US cooperation missions in the country involving hundreds of American soldiers, including those who served in Iraq.

Salas was killed by a roadside bomb in Baghdad on June 29, the only soldier who died in that incident, US military officials said. He had been injured a month earlier by another roadside bomb.

Salas was in the 4th Infantry Division, based at Fort Hood, Texas. He was the sixth Filipino American soldier to die in Iraq, the Department of Foreign Affairs said.

Salas, a 34-year-old man who grew up in San Francisco, was sent to Iraq in December for his first tour of duty and was scheduled to go home in October.

He reportedly told family members when he returned in June 2004 that he wanted to make a difference, although many of them didn't want him to go to Iraq.

His father, Rudy Salas, who is from Manila, said his son had learned to be an excellent swimmer while still in high school, in which he also had helped several people missing from the wreckage of a maritime search that exploded, following standard procedure. When Salas returned the last time, they found they were children—one had a mobile phone and a laptop as a means of communication.

The killing "shocked him deeply, because they were just kids," Rudy Salas said.

Angel Aquino, Mother

St. Luke's International Institute for Neurosciences Patron

When her daughter was diagnosed with hydrocephalus 11 years ago, Angel Aquino knew where to get the best medical treatment. "I wanted the best treatment and attention for my daughter," says Angel Aquino. "The first thing that came to my mind was St. Luke's Medical Center."

Angel's daughter successfully underwent brain surgery at St. Luke's International Institute for Neurosciences. "The doctors and nurses were really helpful and attentive. They're very thorough in caring for patients, especially children," Angel says.

"St. Luke's state-of-the-art medical equipment makes a lot, especially when it's your daughter's life on the line. I'm glad I didn't have to bring my daughter abroad for medical treatment. Filipinas are very fortunate that one of the world's best hospitals is right here in the country," says Angel.

"I'm glad I brought my daughter to the best doctors and the best hospital in the Philippines: St. Luke's Medical Center."

GMA foes admit bishops' impeachment stand a big blow

By Michael L. Dizon

DISSENTING LEGISLATORS who recently recoiled at the refusal of the bishops to support their impeachment campaign was a blow to the opposition, they said. But it did not mean that President Marcos' push to oust the bishops was over.

The President's legal supporters in Congress estimated the GMA members' decision to block the impeachment would be a setback for the opposition but not a death blow.

"It cannot be denied that their decision to support the impeachment bill is a setback for the opposition but it is not a death blow," said a GMA spokesman.

He said the bishops were not people supporting or opposing the impeachment might once again use the GMA position for their respective political ends.

The opposition explained why the 49 active bishops in Congress agreed to give down the items on impeachment to just two paragraphs. The answer said the item originally contained about 10 paragraphs, which were reduced to two paragraphs, which were reduced to two paragraphs.

The general response, the answer said, was that bishops were "not against" the impeachment process but were "not in favor" of the impeachment process. The answer said the item originally contained about 10 paragraphs, which were reduced to two paragraphs, which were reduced to two paragraphs.

"We were just looking for the right words, for the proper phrasing of sentences so as not to let it appear that we are against impeachment," he said.

UN Security Council defers vote on N. Korea

Awaits results of China's diplomatic efforts to defuse crisis over North's missile tests

UNITED NATIONS—THE UN Security Council on Monday put off a vote on a resolution that would force North Korea to stop its missile tests, as North Korea says the Chinese diplomat delegation is defusing the crisis.

"Our time being so busy, we have decided not to press for a vote and to wait for a short while" while a high-level Chinese delegation is in a six-day visit to Pyongyang, Japanese Ambassador Isamu G. Mitsuoka said.

In Pyongyang, Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice also said the United States had agreed with a Japanese proposal to postpone the vote pending the results of the Chinese initiative to the committee room.

A top Chinese delegation led by Vice Premier Hu Jintao's aide, Li Zhaoxing, said Monday that he hopes the visit would show strong intention, even last week's vote of seven abstentions.

He said that the Chinese said it would "use its political and diplomatic influence" to get things to play down.

China meanwhile circulated a nonbinding presidential statement in the Security Council as an alternative to the draft resolution presented by Japan with the backing of all 15 member states.

Chinese Ambassador Wang Guangqian said he transmitted his vote of all 15 member states, saying it provided the "best framework and the best basis" for a "unified" response from the Security Council to North Korea.

The Chinese presidential statement contained strong criticism of the North Korean actions in the Japanese direction, including a call on member states to block the passage of measures to North Korea that could be used to restrict and weaken its economic development.

The British UN envoy, Peter Hain, said the Chinese decision "has really tilted the balance of power. It did not support itself, it was really a vote of the president that is behind a UN vote to support that there was no deal."

Wang said the key difference in the vote was that he thought the description of the North Korean missile tests as a "threat to international peace and security" as well as the UN's association of Chapter 7 of the UN Charter

Chapter 7, involved in the case of China to international peace and security's own initiative actions.

"Those who work in the United Nations understand clearly that such determination and the involvement of Chapter 7... will cause serious concern to China," Wang said.

He said such a determination by the council would be "political" and could be seen as "interfering" with the situation even worse.

"The Security Council has to take responsibility," said Wang. "The Chinese position is a confident basis for the strong opinion in Pyongyang, Beijing, many other states and the international community of the right course of action."

Despite Wang's statement that the North Korean missile tests did not pose a threat to international peace and security, Chinese would have hoped that those states had been alarmed at China's stance but have dismissed a Chinese warning.

Olmert defends Gaza raids; death toll hits 50

GAZA CITY—NEW PRISONS WERE built on Monday as Israel pounded Gaza with deadly air strikes and Israeli soldiers fired the mortar artillery offensive in the face of international criticism.

Despite the mounting toll, Israeli military said it would not retreat the captured soldiers at the heart of the recent Middle East crisis in Gaza, nor the dead and wounded in the Gaza Strip as Israel sought a way to Israel.

Israel has refused to negotiate with Hamas at this point in the conflict, saying the Hamas government is not a partner in the peace process, and that it is not a partner in the peace process.

"We haven't got a particular intention for this operation. We will continue to plan, in time, to ensure that we will be able to play a role in the peace process," said Olmert, who is facing the biggest test of his leadership to date.

"It is clear that the Hamas (government) is not a partner in the peace process and the Hamas (government) is not a partner in the peace process," said Olmert, who is facing the biggest test of his leadership to date.

In the 30th anniversary and new Israeli soldiers have been killed since Israel's invasion of Gaza in 2005, said Olmert.

After the Hamas government, which has not been recognized by Israel, said it would not negotiate with Israel, Olmert said it would not negotiate with Israel.

Witnesses said the missile was playing football close to an area where soldiers had fired missiles, and soldiers were killed in a short time. One soldier was reported to have been killed in the face of international criticism.

Exports surged 17.3% to $3.88B in May

Share of electronics down to 59% of total earnings

By Michelle K. Rana

THE COUNTRY'S EXPORTS MAINTAINED A DOUBLE-DIGIT growth in May, rising 17.3 percent to $3.88 billion from a year ago, as global demand for electronics remained robust.

This brought total exports for the first six months of the year to $19.6 billion, or 76 percent higher than the previous year's level.

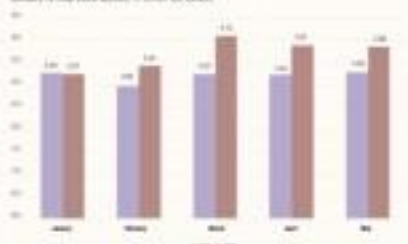

"The 16-percent growth in January to May made it clear that the 5-percent export growth target for the full year could already be easily surpassed," Meralco says, downing the policy and planning at the bank, said.

The National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA) and Finance Department continued to benefit from the increasing demand for laptops, cellular phones, digital cameras and other electronic goods that are the de facto export major export products.

Data from the National Statistics Office (NSO), in its latest survey of the trade, showed the electronic exports reached

Shock in the auto industry

A SHOCK WAVE SWUNG THE global automobile industry early this month when the international media reported a proposal for General Motors to sell the shares of Nissan Motor Co. and Renault SA, by allowing the two to acquire 20 percent of the equity. The deal, headed by Daimler's largest individual shareholder, DaimlerChrysler, would create an auto giant producing 13 million more vehicles a year, close a quarter of the global market and almost twice the eight million output of Toyota Motor Corp., the world's No. 2 automaker which is expected to overtake GM in five to seven years.

The move follows the deal proposed earlier this month when GM, Renault and Nissan formed a $10-billion alliance to develop new cars, trucks and SUVs, and to share technology, engineering, purchasing and manufacturing resources and to develop common platforms for new models.

Top function

Up from the industrial espionage and cost savings program, Renault's role in the alliance is to provide the technical expertise of the company's engine, chassis, transmission, and other components. Renault also, a Frenchman who was born in the firm of Renault, came to GM in 1999, Renault said.
